DEDICATION

The class of 1964 dedicates its yearbook to a teacher who has shown us how to retain our sense of humor and desire to learn even if it requires "perserverance and ingenuity." He has taught us to look at the "big picture" and laugh at the little annoyances. He has shown us how to wear a print tie and a plaid jacket. All the while, of course, he has tried to teach us not to divide by zero or prove theorems backwards. Some of us have topped our mathematical careers with a year in his room. He has equipped others to plunge into trig and calculus. Perhaps even more than we remember the mathematics, we will remember how well he has guided our class and coached the J.V. basketball team. He is a man who has given his time that we might develop into better people. Therefore, we, the class of 1964, dedicate our yearbook to Jeremiah J. Kellett.

Juniors

The juniors underwent a change over the year that gradually brought them to the beginning of the end of their high school cycle.

They started off in September by feeling older all around and gaining a new respect throughout the school, now that there were two classes behind them.

From the very first day the Guidance Office made certain that they realized: "In the junior year one must start planning for one's future after high school. In the senior year it is too late." The juniors plunged into a confusing world of College Board scores, career talks, and college interviews. No one seemed to know, after he had visited a college, whether he liked it or not. Many decided temporarily that they didn't really want to go to college anyway."

Juniors soon found out that the best idea was to buckle down with their own frantic schedules at Weston. Teachers seemed to pile on homework because "This is the year that counts." Eager for favorable recommendations, students pasted on Pepsodent smiles in class, and stayed for an abundance of "extra help."

The Accordian Plan brought the juniors face to face with the terrifying task of writing an historically theoretical essay that contained "Parallelism and no split infinitives."

Aluminum and charge cloud models were also new. Each C.B.A. student wondered just what was happening in the next room and vice versa. The drowsy Algebra Two student could be sure to be aroused by the CLOINK or chalk being heaved indignantly into Mr. Kellett's circular file. Every junior in French Three came down with a bad case of "jelly livers" two days before and after giving his "petit discourse." Russian students practiced frightful pronunciations between mouthfuls of goulash E period. Latin students plugged away under books filled with pictures of Roman statues.

In Janurary the Juniors felt the cycle's progress when they got their class rings. About this same time more Weston jackets appeared in student crowds, displaying the white football emblem showing that Weston won the Dual County League Championship. One or two juniors were on the starting line-up in basketball, but the bench was warmed by many who will shine next year.

As spring neared, talk of Field Day was pushed under in this class by ideas for the spectacular Junior Prom. Juniors enjoyed getting out of study halls and gathering at each others' homes on school nights for the Decoration Committee meetings. It wasn't unusual for a frustrated worker to be heard seething "Ok . . . Ok! Let's just not have any Prom at all!"

When the newly elected National Honor Society members helped with graduation, it became evident that they soon would really begin the end. No one could actually imagine "We are going to be Seniors next year!" But they would, because the cycle goes on.

Sophomores

The sophomores were glad this year not to be at the beginning of the cycle. They had gained more responsibilities since their freshman year and felt needed in the high school cycle.

The guidance counselors seemed to feel they were neglecting the "middle child" but the sophomores said the teachers made up for any possible neglect. Mr. Zorn's required speech class faced many students with a six-subject load as well as timely "attacks," that required the immediate attention of the nurse. Most sophomores took Biology One, entering the labs timidly, remembering the upperclassmen's tales of five foot boa constrictors and reeking frogs. Once inside they found that dressing armless Oscar was their biggest problem. A few exceptionally eager sophomores astounded everyone by plunging into the land of stroboscopes and ripple tanks, better known as Physics.

Some Sophomores were stumped by geometric proofs but enjoyed the compass fights. In French Two class one could count on jumping at least a foot in the air every time Mr. Roche kicked his desk to get the class' attention. Sophomore Latin students will always remember that "All Gaul is divided into three parts . . . ," and many have high hopes that their knowledge of Russian will facilitate future foreign diplomacy.

The class of 1966 added to much of the year's athletic success. A few of the boys participating in the Varsity Football's fantastic season. There were many starting sophomores on the basketball team, including "the twins." The girls performed enviable miracles in field hockey, basketball, and lacrosse.

The entire class showed its spirit to the school at the fall pep rally, and was awarded a candy-filled pumpkin. To this day no one really knows whether Artie Miller has eaten it or not. Part of the class' spirit stems from their sensational field day last year, which they set out to duplicate this year.

Some of the more musically talented class members proudly participated in the Northeast District Band and Orchestra, while members of the various choruses and band were hosts to Masconomet for a February exchange concert.

The sophomores produced their own activities too. Cafe Counterpoint, featuring "Juicy Brucey Bradley" from WBZ was quite a success, even though a variety of sophomore personalities brought about heated arguments "I want 'Sugar Shack'!" and "But 'Out of Limits' is better." They also made more money by running the concession stand at the basketball games.

The cycle whirled on through May as the curious sophomores wondered about the Junior Prom. However, they weren't worried; theirs would be still better.

As the year neared its end, the once cancelled class meetings resumed and thoughts turned to the class of 1966's junior year, which would be the beginning of still another cycle.

Freshmen

The freshmen started the strange and intriguing cycle known as "high school" this fall. No one let them forget that they were the "b[illegible]" for one minute. All year, in every corner of the building, th[illegible]eard such [illegible]"Fr[illegible] yuck!" or "They're only freshmen; they don't kn[illegible]"

The faculty boosted their morale [illegible] after all they "weren't babies anymore[illegible] all about the function and meaning of[illegible] only real way to learn about it was to b[illegible]exp[illegible]

Everyone took English. Most freshm[illegible] wor[illegible] while a few lucky ones had the privilege of [illegible]m 22[illegible] biology." Some freshmen were also allowed to enter French Tw[illegible] classmen with their mouths hanging open. Brave freshmen plu[illegible] world of "hic, haec, hoc . . ." that made them ask if they could [illegible] drink of water. Algebra One turned out to be a "Discussion of the last three letters of the alphabet" instead of a foreign language. Miss Sigel's World Geography class was "obviously" a study of many strange worlds. Some of the most humorous noises heard around the school were the ritual chantings of "asdf;lkj space!" escaping from the personal typing classes.

In the fall the freshmen displayed their skill in sports. An undefeated freshman football team was complemented nicely with freshman girls on Varsity and J.V. field hockey. The boys' basketball team didn't quite match up to the football team, but the girls' basketball team could be heard cheering louder than the cheerleaders practicing in the hall nearby. Also a member of the freshman class made girls' varsity basketball.

Spring came and so did the spring sports, with the same freshman enthusiasm. Many girls anxiously tried out for cheerleading and hopes were high to repeat a freshman win in Field Day.

For the first time in a few years the freshmen held their own dance. They supported the other after-school activities wholeheartedly as well. The noise that had made them unpopular in study hall made them famous at games. They turned out in such great numbers at sock hops, it made many an upperclassman wonder if he was in Weston High School or some neighboring school. A few fortunate freshmen got a peek at the decorations for the Prom. Some were even invited and envied beyond measure. The freshmen were described as "teeny-weeny" but held their own with the "Lucky Thirteen" for support.

Near June they were faced with the problem of planning their courses for the next three years. Also one spring day they realized that they were gaining prestige once more as they snickered and pointed at the invading eighth grade visitors. They were gradually turning with the cycle to make room for more new "beginners . . ."

Led by co-captains Bob DeSimone and Fred White, the Weston Wildcats surged to a winning season this year. The team's record of eight wins and one loss enabled them to win the Dual County League Championship and place runnerup in Class D.

During the season Weston did not depend on any one player. Each man helped contribute to the successful season. But there were many exciting plays that will be remembered for a long time to come. The long touchdown pass to Bill Baine in the closing minutes of the Ashland game clinched a victory. That day at North Reading Bob Lazzari and Mac Harrison intercepted five passes between them to stop North Reading cold. Jon Trowbridge helped the scoring power of Weston with two touchdown runs on beginning kick-offs. Al Stone will always remember when a lineman's dream came true for him as he intercepted a Bedford pass and ran it back for a touchdown. But the varsity defense has nothing for our opponents to laugh at. This strong part of the team allowed no team to score over ten points against them.

The game that everyone will remember came on a bleak Thanksgiving morning at Wayland High School. The day may have been cold, but Weston was ready and waiting for the oncoming encounter. The two teams filed onto the field and the Weston victory was underway.

After Jon Trowbridge caught the kick-off on the twenty yard line and ran it back for a touchdown, the team was on its way. The final score was thirty to eight and thus ended a nine year curse for Weston. This final Wildcat victory was a fitting end to an excellent season.

Co-captains Jim Banghart and Ed Owens led the jayvees to a hard fought 2-3-1 season. Under the watchful eye of Coach Delaney, they went as far as tying Wayland. Each one of the players, including those on the bench, worked hard to become potential varsity players. There was a great improvement of the team as a whole. From the beginning of the season it looked as though the jayvees were doomed to an extremely bad season. The hard work of the line and backfield changed this gloomy prediction. The line lacked depth, but with Coach Delaney's switching of personnel, the team was able to be proud of its accomplishments.

Freshman Football

With an explosive backfield set behind a hard-charging line, the freshman football team had an undefeated season this fall. In his first year of coaching, J. J. Kellett led his squad to a 6-0 reçord, including a 30-6 smashing of Wayland, with the help of Co-captains Dave Locke and Steve Gardner.

The frosh had a dangerous passing game, shown in the Ashland game when Steve Gardner had over 213 yards in the air, a powerful running game, and a stubborn defense which allowed on the average only one touchdown per game.

The ninth grade scoring leaders were Alan Lazarri with 26 points, including the winning T.D. in the tense Ashland game, Dan Aquilino with 24 markers, including three touchdowns in the Wayland game, and Steve Gardner with twenty tallies.

Above all the frosh had fine team spirit. Everyone had a burning desire to hit hard and to win. It was the combination of fine coaching and great spirit that enabled the freshmen to have the season they did.

The basketball cycle at Weston High School this year was new in many ways. Mr. Carini, after a very successful reign, stepped down as coach because of increased guidance department duties. Mr. Alex Manzo, previously from Athol, Massachusetts, took over as varsity coach.

Basketball hopefuls, after a few practices, early in November, found themselves wondering if perhaps they were training for a track team. The team started running in November and never stopped.

After an opening loss to Westwood the team rebounded, and at the end of seven games was sporting a 4-3 record. On a dreary Monday afternoon Coach Manzo informed the varsity that, due to a mistake in a received transcript, Hank Combellick, a new student from California, had been ineligible during the seven games played. As a result, Weston forfeited the four games which it had won, and the record became 0-7.

Basketball

The team was colorful mainly because of its speed and erratic shooting. Rebounding and lack of experience were problems. Returning starters Bob D'Antonio and Rawley Thomas were standouts. Even though Bob is a fine scorer in his own right, he was seen many times setting Rawley up for those long bombs, which were reminiscent of the Buddy Foster era. "D" also was the unquestionable leader of the team as a defensive unit, in which Bob Lazzari was a close second.

Lack of varsity playing experience should not hurt Weston next year. Mac Harrison, Al Stone, and Dick Crowley have shown that they can amply make up for the graduating seniors. The other juniors improved very rapidly, and Weston will have a strong basketball nucleus next year.

In spite of many injuries, the freshman basketball team did a commendable job this year. The high points of the season came when the team avenged earlier losses to Wayland and Bedford, and beat a strong Lynnfield team. Although the final record was 3-6, the games were uniformly exciting and many boys gained valuable experience for the future.

Cross Country

This winter wrestling was introduced at Weston High. Because of the lack of a good wrestling mat, the program was kept at an intermural level. However, approximately forty boys still showed up each afternoon for practice at the Brook School. Next year, under the coaching of Mr. Harris, wrestling is hoped to become a varsity sport. The school also plans to buy a large 34' x 34' wrestling mat, which will add considerably to the program. Even if the boys forget the skills they have learned, they are sure to remember the hours of conditioning and exercises.

A visitor to the high school playing field in the fall of 1963 would have seen a group of fifteen dedicated boys busily torturing themselves in a variety of ways, first calisthetics, then a few quarter mile dashes, then a run of from two to six miles each afternoon. This continued masochism was not without results, however, because for the second year in a row the cross country team was unbeaten and untied. Though on one occasion the three Weston front runners got so far ahead on a strange course they got lost and ended up in a gravel pit, the twelve meets were won safely and with few mishaps, with several perfect scores of fifteen. The team is fortunate that only two of its members, Co-Captain Robert Shaw and John Brewer, are seniors and will be graduating. Co-Captain Lev Flint, who won all twelve meets this year, and Pete Heidt were elected co-captains of next year's team.

Field Hockey

The familiar drone of Miss Butera's voice, "Exercise, one, two, three, four!" resounded over the girls' field hockey team daily. Always it was exercise — in rain, mud, and even snow. These afternoon practices established a pattern of hard work for the field hockey team. After chipping her tooth in one practice session, Nan Purdy set the style for mouthguards. Miss Butera soon became notorious not only for a hard-fighting hockey team, but for "the team with the mouthguards."

Grinning all the while, the varsity wound up with a 4, 3, 2 season. The season got a slow start because of the lack of experienced players. However, harassed by Co-captains Ginny White and Holly Dunn, the team picked up momentum and finished with a winning season.

The junior varsity, on the other hand, was blessed with a strong team both offensively and defensively. Members of both varsity and junior varsity well remember the Walnut Hill game, in which Star Bright was carried from the hard-fought junior varsity game with a face wound. Luckily, she was wearing her mouthpiece. In this fighting spirit, the J.V.'s finished undefeated.

The ladies of both teams long recall the scramble for refreshments after the games, the bus rides, and Miss Butera's splendid coaching and personality.

Girls' Basketball

This year's girls' basketball team was probably one of the best that W[redacted]as even seen. The varsity was almost undefeated[redacted]t once to a strong Westwood team. Varsity memb[redacted]e from all classes. For the second year in a row, [redacted]nman made varsity. The forward trio of Louise Bayles,[redacted]nn Stone and Martie Wypler led the scoring, but the guards scored too. Captain Holly Dunn, a guard, consistently made one foul shot per game.

All of the team members will remember the Wayland game, when Weston won by one point in the final seconds of play. The excitement was almost enough to make the relatively passive coach rise from her seat on the bench. Miss Butera inspired the team members with her words in the huddle, "Don't get nervous; we can do it." They did. The 8 and 1 record is one to be proud of.

The Junior Varsity had trouble finding the basket during the first few games, but with increasing practice and Captain Shelley Dunn's leadership, they had a winning season. Many of the players showed great potential for next year's varsity team. Although the J.V. team was very large, everyone had a chance to play.

Under Coach Mike Keenan, the Weston Wildcats had a record of three wins and nine defeats. This record does not show the true potential of the players. This was Weston's first year in the Dual County Hockey League, which has been going on for many years. With Paul Young and Roger Wharton as Co-Captains, and Wayne Osmond as third highest scorer in the County League, the Wildcats were second place runner-ups in team scoring in the League. All Weston needs is a few more years to develop a strong team that will win and keep winning.

ACTIVITIES

From a vicious cycle of numerous class meetings, which often ended up in real knock-down-drag-out fights, the idea of "Parahai," meaning goodbye in Polynesian, was evolved. No member of the class of 1964 will forget the frantic tension of the decoration preparations. Chris Comeau, who did an amazing job of organization, will vouch for this. Long into the night, lights could be seen burning in the homes around Weston, where hoards of hard-working juniors were buried somewhere under piles of frayed burlap and chicken wire, squares of tissue paper stuffed in their ears. Some of the more ambitious boys could be seen returning from nearby Elks clubs with palm trees waving out of the tops of convertibles.

When "the evening" finally arrived, no one recognized the cafeteria. Upon entering the misty tropical paradise, the guests crossed "Freddie's bridges," taking care not to join the pennies and frogs in the shimmering water below.

The evening was a thrill for everyone. Dick Madison and his band poured out harmonious strains to complement the sway of silk and satin. The most breathtaking scene was Queen Madolyn Rizzo and her royal court. All eyes were on her as she walked to the native refreshment "hut" to cut the cake.

The disappointment that everyone felt, as the melodies faded, gave way to anticipation of the elaborate feasts waiting at the after-prom parties. No one who entered the brief land of Parahai will forget it. Perhaps it was better that the juniors didn't leave the "pillar palm trees" up during the following school week, for then it wouldn't have seemed like a dream.

Each year's cycle is sprinkled with the glitter of social events. This year's events sparkled with the unusual.

In the early fall the Student Council neatly broke the ice with their annual dance. Everyone was extra nosy about "who got asked by an upperclassman." The sophomores picked up the trend in November and threw themselves into the frantic production of "Cafe Counterpoint." WBZ's disc jockey, "Juicy Brucey" Bradley and his records were the entertainment for the evening. After hearing rumors of weird decorations, all were amused at the "Sugar Shack," where refreshments were sold.

To patch up dramatic holes in their funds, the Drama Club sponsored a dance featuring the Ripchords. The freshmen were not to be outdone; in the last weekend in February they presented "Tertulia," which means dance. Dance means fun, fun means" . . .". Ricky Coyne entertained.

No one will ever forget the Yearbook's famous Hootenanny, and nobody really knows where the committee dug up the twelve folksinging groups. In any case, they came in all shapes and sizes. The acts ranged from The Haymakers' group harmony to Stu Erwin's "foot stompin'."

As the gym clock struck 9:30 p.m. and all was well, except that it was actually 10:30 p.m., enthusiastic basketball fans sifted from the gym to the cafeteria to enjoy the sock hops. The hops were usually over much too soon, and packed with dress-code offenders and out-of-towners. Proud but exhausted team members and fans monkeyed to Lev Flint's record selections, and then took off for Ho-Jo's.

Although this year's social events are approaching the end of their cycle, the committees who worked so hard on each one may be assured that the fun they provided will always be remembered.

Evidence of the fine work done by our janitorial staff.

Drama Club

This year the Drama Club, under the direction of Mr. Paul Nichols, showed its great versatility. On October 25 and 26, the club presented its first production, Sophocles' Oedipus Rex. Lee Evans gave a magnificent performance as King Oedipus, Fred Ewers excelled as Teirasias, the blind prophet, and Renee Strong gave a moving interpretation of Iocaste. John Abbott's lighting and Howard Storm's unusual set design helped to make this a daringly different production.

January 9 and 10, the Drama Club switched to an entirely different type of play and presented the Pulitzer Prize-winning comedy, Harvey. Richard Brush, who played the loveable character, Elwood P. Dowd, Wendy Wilson as Veta Louise Simmons, and Robert Desimone as Mr. Wilson kept the audience in howls of laughter in one of the most successful plays ever put on at Weston.

Under the leadership of its officers, Jodie Wetmore, President, Fred Ewers, Vice-President, Wendy Wilson, Secretary and Fay Smith, Treasurer, the Drama Club held a dance in December, and many of its members participated in the State Speech Contest in February.

At the Annual Drama Festival, the Drama Club presented Spoon River Anthology from the collection of poems by Edward Lee Masters. These poetic sketches, adapted for the stage by Mr. Nichols, enjoyed enormous success at the Regional, State, and New England Drama Festivals. A full length version was given as the final spring production on May 8 and 9.

During the fall the cheerleaders showed real spirit at the football games, even on rainy days when they wore their new red slickers. Their intricate cheers kept the spectators interested during time-outs on the field. After months of practice, cheers still retained their first-time freshness. The girls smiled so warmly it was impossible to tell that their teeth were chattering. The cheerleaders brightened the gym during the basketball season, prodding reluctant fans with their, "All those for Weston, stand up and shout!"

At half-time the football field sparkled with white uniforms, providing sharp contrast to the deep red of the band blazers. The majorettes spent many tedious hours drilling, both with the band and by themselves. Lacking the heavy sweaters the cheerleaders had, the majorettes courageously endured the cold at the end of the football season.

Both the cheerleaders and the majorettes worked hard to provide interesting entertainment during the fall and winter sports cycle.

From the first football game through graduation, the band, orchestra, and choirs were in the midst of the school's cycle. Donning their snappy, still-new uniforms, the band often brightened damp Saturdays as they performed on a soggy football field. As soon as their successful marching season was over, the band dove into preparation for its Christmas Concert with the girls' choir and the orchestra. The evening Christmas Concert, the first one ever held in Weston, was a great success, including one of Dick Given's many thrilling trumpet solos.

The Band and Conference Period Choir made numerous new friends through the combined concerts with Masconomet High School. The highlight of that concert was the 220 combined singers accompanied by the combined bands performing "From Sea to Shining Sea."

During the fall, the orchestra recovered from last year's hectic schedule but their hard work was evident at all their performances including the exchange concert with Shrewsbury.

May was the rewarding climax for all those in the band, orchesra, or choirs, with the supurb Spring Concert, Memorial Day activities, and most of all, the Northeastern District Music Festival, which Weston hosted. The whole community's joint efforts made the program with its 4000 participants run smoothly.

The band ended the year by playing at graduation, sorry to see many tellow musicians leave, but knowing the cycle goes on.

IN MEMORIAM

NORMAN A. SMITH

"We here in Weston will not soon forget Mr. Smith's keen scholarship and solid devotion to his job. We have known him uncomplainingly and unobtrusively to go about his teaching duties even when very ill. Lesser men would have called in sick, but Mr. Smith, brave man that he was, somehow carried on.

Weston has lost a fine teacher and a noble human being. We will never forget him."
